- Where a domain name is being used, or has a high risk of being used, for illegal, disruptive, malicious, or fraudulent action, including, without limitation for the purposes of: distributing malware, abusively operating botnets, phishing, piracy, trademark or copyright infringement, fraudulent or deceptive practices, counterfeiting or otherwise engaging in activity contrary to applicable law; or
- Where the domain name is being used for an unlawful purpose.
- Where the domain name would on the face of it (i) tend to indicate, comprise or promote a serious sexual offence and (ii) that there is no legitimate use of the domain name which could be reasonably contemplated.
